CARBON FOOTPRINT OFFSETTING

To compensate for the unavoidable residual emissions from the Tree Free product line during 2020, Favini has funded a landfill gas to energy project. The biogas power project is for a plant to be built close to Molu village, Koca Sinan district in the province of Kayseri, Turkey. The project aims at avoiding greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions from an existing landfill area by collecting biogas to generate electricity. Thus, in addition to the direct avoidance of GHG emissions, further indirect emission reductions are achieved through the CO₂ - neutral replacement of fossil fuels used for power generation. The activity includes installation of landfill gas extraction system, an enclosed flare as well as a biogas driven generator for electricity production. Construction work for project started at the end of June 2011. The total licenced installed capacity of the project is 4.222 MWe.

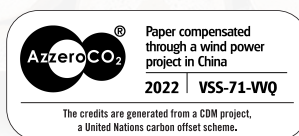

Environmental, socio-economics benefits:

- Reduction in fossil fuel use (imported or local)
- Reduction in greenhouse gas emissions from the landfill area
- Reduction in energy production costs and imported energy amounts
- Improvement of environmental conditions (GHG and odour) and safety in the landfill area
